Sunrise Springs Spa Resort (Santa Fe, NM) is helping guests soak in the benefits of water while enjoying the great outdoors with its new Ojitos open-air, mineral-infused bathing experiences (starting at $30 for an individual soak, 25 minutes; starting at $45 for 2 guests, 50 minutes). Surrounded by cottonwoods and overlooking the resort's picturesque spring-fed pond, the new Ojitos soaking area features two outdoor pools, two mineral-infused soaking tubs, a coed eucalyptus steam room, and two private steam showers. The mineral-infused soaks offer a calming, naturally detoxifying magnesium-based bathing experience that helps to relieve stress and body aches. "Our mission at Sunrise Springs is to provide an immersive experience to create a greater connection to the waters here for our guests. As passionate stewards of our sacred springs, we are excited to unveil Ojitos as the first iteration of this effort," says founder Andy Scott. "Natural springs have been a source of gathering, healing, and nourishment for diverse groups of people throughout history, and we are honoring that legacy by emphasizing these waters as a central experience."—JULIE KELLER CALLAGHAN
